JAN DILS ATTORNEYS AT LAW LAUNCHES NEW WEBSITE FOR VETERANS' DISABILITIES CLAIMS

September 1, 2010: Jan Dils Attorneys at Law has launched a new website - www.fight4vets.com – aimed at helping veterans and their families through the disabilities claims process. The site provides a comprehensive online resource detailing the types of Veterans' disabilities and claims and available benefits, as well as common roadblocks that can be encountered in receiving those benefits.

In addition, the site outlines the appeals process, provides answers to common disability benefits and claims questions and includes a locator tool for Veterans' hospitals. For those who want to get started by sending the details of their situation online, a "tell us about your case" area of the site submits the information directly to the firm.

"We developed the site in response to the specific disabilities issues and claims that Veterans have today," said Jan Dils, head of the firm which has been operating since 1994. "The online information provides a fast and easy way for Veterans to get valuable information and to understand how it may apply to their own disability situations."

The Jan Dils law firm, which is focused exclusively on disabilities benefits, works with clients in the areas of Social Security disability through the Social Security Administration and Veterans' benefits through the Veterans Administration. The firm's main office is located in Parkersburg, West Virginia, with additional offices located in Charleston, Logan, Huntington and Beckley, West Virginia and Charlotte, North Carolina.

Visitors to the www.fight4vets.com site can utilize a link provided to go to the www.jandils.com site for a look at the full range of services the firm provides.
